EDITORIAL BOARD
Our articles are the result of editorial teamwork which involves editors, literature search specialists, reviewers and quality control editors. Prescrire editors receive comprehensive in-house training. Almost all are doctors or pharmacists, most of them in active practice. The review panel, specific to a given article, comprises 10-40 people, who are experts, methodologists or health professionals representative of the readership.
Each year, all members of Prescrire editorial staff sign a declaration stating that they have no conflicts of interest, including ties to drug companies.
